Vestas Mediterranean's Customer Service Centre in Zaragoza, Spain, to be inaugurated on 21 September 2006

Vestas Mediterranean's newly established Customer Service Centre will provide service to all the Mediterranean countries. The Centre includes a Surveillance Centre, from where Vestas carries out 24/7 surveillance of more than 2,000 wind turbines located in the Mediterranean region, and a Training Centre that provides continuous training to Vestas' personnel in the Mediterranean region.

On 21 September at 1 p.m., Vestas Mediterranean's Customer Service Centre will be officially opened in the industrial estate of Centrovía in La Muela in Zaragoza. The Centre will be officially opened when the Minister of Industry, Commerce and Tourism from the Government of Aragon, Mr. Arturo Aliaga, unveils a plaque in the reception area. Several other politicians and representatives from the local and regional administration will be present at the event.

At the event, the following members of Vestas' top management will also be present: Mr Finn Strøm Madsen, President of Technology R&D, Vestas Wind Systems A/S, Mr Ebbe Funk, President of Vestas Mediterranean A/S, and Mr Thomas Kirk Jepsen, Vice President of Project & Technology and Customer Service, Vestas Mediterranean A/S.

The creation of a new Customer Service Centre, which will cover the entire Mediterranean region, is in line with Vestas' strategy stated in "The Will to Win", i.e. Vestas being closer to its markets. The Centre also includes the Surveillance Centre from which Vestas carries out 24/7 surveillance of more than 2,000 wind turbines in the Mediterranean region – with the number of turbines continuously increasing.

Vestas' new training facilities are also located at the Customer Service Centre. At the new Training Centre, our employees will receive continuous training in the areas of operation, service and maintenance in order to keep on offering our customers the best service.

Furthermore, the Customer Service Centre in La Muela will serve as the central warehouse for components and spare parts for servicing Vestas' turbines located in the entire Mediterranean area.
